Chapter 1 by Jonathan Quitariano-Suan

Aeons ago, before the existence of the universe and all that there was, there was the Great Conflict. The energies of Light and Dark were at constant war. Even before time, Light attempted to thwart dark, Dark attempted Light. From this conflict arose an ever mixing of shades. The intensity of these contradictions of the Dark and Light, their powers growing greater and greater, were evoked into these shades, thus being reflected in new colors. Soon, time began as this contradiction reached an ultimate peak. From these powers came a great thunder, and color and emotion flooded the planes of nothingness, forming the universe as we know.
